

Letter: Lee Public Schools' Climate Science Fair is a cool idea

Jun 5, 2024

1 min to read

To the editor: The degree to which we have all become so much more conscious of changes to our world triggered by climate change is both staggering and encouraging.

More and more of us are thinking about ways in which we can make a difference, including teachers and school administrators. For some inspiration and real-time action, I recommend visiting Lee Public Schools' Climate Science Fair on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at the Lee Middle and High School gymnasium. Students will present their climate-friendly projects while service providers and nonprofits will help all visitors to take their next step to protect our world — and ourselves.

There will be lots of fun things to do — and eat — including a trivia game, raffle prizes, pizza, a textile drive, seed bombs and more. Alongside the students, visitors can learn from Pioneer Valley Planning Commission, Homeworks, Berkshire Environmental Action Team, the Lee Land Trust, the Lee Greener Gateway Committee and Tommy’s Compost Service.

Kudos to Lee Public Schools and organizing teacher Paula Duhon for preparing their students for a challenging future in such relevant ways.

Uli Nagel, Lee

The writer is director of the Cooler Communities school grant program.

The Berkshire Eagle

Terms of Use
Privacy Policy

Sections

- News
- Sports
- Business
- Arts & Culture
- Obituaries
- Opinion
- Local Events
- Online Features

Services

- About Us
- Advertise
- Contact Us
- Come Work for Us
- Subscribe
- Buy Eagle photos
- Newsletters
- Commercial printing
- Promote Your Event
- Place a classified ad
- Place a display ad
- RSS Feeds
- Transparency in Coverage

